

WUS AUSTRIA IN MACEDONIA

SKOMRAHI:Linking Creativity International Meeting of Students of the Academies of Dramatic Arts

Skomrahi exists since 1988 and contributes to (among others): Strengthening European cooperation of film and drama academies; Creation of a positive attitude towards regional identity, thus also reducing interethnic tensions in Macedonia and SEE (esp. among the former Yugoslav republics); Encouragement of art production acknowledging the function of arts as an important factor of social critique, as a vital factor for a strong civil society and a democratic and peaceful Europe and Strengthening cultural and educational cooperation between Austrian/EU and South East European art production by applying Bologna principles. Skomrahi is funded by the ADC.

"Serious theatrologists, studying sources from the VI and VII century, where the dates of the Slavic heathen theater experience come from, ran into a group of unserious people from the Balkans who wore roughly woven white, long, baggy clothes, masks and colors on their faces, wigs made of wool and mud on their heads, and did strange things: danced, juggled, hit stretched leather in irregular beats, played music, tamed wild animals, sang: The SKOMRAHS. ... It's strange that these prohibited and foolish paratheatrical weeds, did something, that five centuries latter, the World recognized as comedia dell'arte."
